THE WASHINGTON FALL MEETING.

THE NATIONAL JOCKEY CLUB OPENS TUESDAY.

UNFORTUNATELY THE MOST SUCCESSFUL AND MOST RESPECTED EVER IN THE HISTORY OF THE EASTERN RACING SEASON.

THE NUMBER OF HORSES HAVING TO PARTICIPATE IN THE VARIOUS CONTESTS IS UNPRECEDENTED, AND IN POINT OF QUALITY THEY ARE EQUAL TO THE BEST. THE CONTESTS ARE EXPECTED TO BE INTERESTING AND SENSATIONAL.

THE BASEBALL CHAMPIONS OF THE WORLD.

ST. LOUIS, MO., October 24.—The fifth game of the local championship series between the St. Louis league and the American association ended successful, in our respect, over the latter, by a score of 6 to 5. This is the successive defeat which the Maroons have suffered at the hands of the Browns, and by it the latter team won the championship. They are the champions of the city, of the American association and of the world.

A MISSING VESSEL.

THE WRECKAGE FOUND UPON THE LAKE.

A DAY OF DISASTER ON WATER AND LAND.—A Terrible Railroad Collision in Michigan.—A Lake Vessel on Fire—General Telegraphic News of the Day.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., October 24.—It is believed that the Canadian propeller, Dominion, has foundered in Lake Superior. She left Port Arthur on the north shore last Monday, and was out in the storm that set the George Vessel to the bottom. The steamer had Port Arthur twenty-four hours ahead of her, passed her forty-eight hours ago. The belief is that she is lost and strengthened by the tug boat brought here tonight by the tug boat brought here tonight by the tug boat.

The meetings are being conducted by Rev. Mr. Stringfellow at the Episcopal, Dillat, the Baptist, Alonso Monk at the Methodist, and St. Paul at the Presbyterian. The most remarkable conversion has been J. W. Simpson, a leading barkeeper, whose son's influence caused him to join the church. He said to the church authorities: "I have no means of living." The church paid five thousand dollars for his stock of whisky and will take an inventory of it to-morrow. It will be poured in the river.

City Marshal Rush King arrested last night William Jones, formerly a baker keeper of North Port, charged with assault on Miss Anna Palmer, daughter of the late county commissioner. The name "Gibraltar" stands for several miles. No bodies were discovered, nor could any trace of the crew and passengers at any of the fishing stations. The Dominion is a passenger steamer, and it is reported she had between ten and twenty passengers when she left Port Arthur. They have gone to the south to search for wrecks.

The shore is a series of inhabitants, but there are some grounds for the hope that at least a part of the passengers and crew have

WRECKED ON THE RAIL.

A DISASTROUS COLLISION OF TWO RAILROAD TRAINS.

DETROIT, October 24.—A passenger train on the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee road, consisting of a baggage car, two coaches and a sleeper, ran into an open switch at Royal Oak, eight miles from here, late last night, and collided with a heavily loaded freight train. Engineer Augustus Barrett, after vainly trying to stop the train, managed to stop the baggage car and freight car, the cylinder heads and the escaping steam exploded with the screams and groans of the men buried in the wreck, added terror to the frightful scene. Both engines were completely wrecked. Baggage man John Hennessy and Thomas B. Alexander were among the first to reach the scene. The engine was badly bruised and burned, the contents of the stove having been emptied on their heads. Alexander's condition is critical. John Hennessy, fireman of the freight engine, was taken from under one of the broken cylinders into the fire, eyes closed and a hand held over his head. Nicholas Lamb, engineer of the freight, was badly cut and scalded. The engineer and fireman of the passenger train, who jumped from the crash, rolled down the embankment and were badly hurt. Engineer Odell having his shoulder broken, was being interviewed by several other railroad men.

The track is torn up, the rails twisted in every direction, and the remnants of the two engines lie in a promiscuous heap. The loss is not less than fifty thousand.

SHOT THROUGH THE BRAIN.

THE FRIGHTFUL MURDER OF A WOMAN IN GADSDEN.

CHATTANOOGA, October 24.—[Special.]—The details of a awful and most atrocious murder, which occurred near Gadsden, Ala., last night, reached this city tonight. A young man named Elisha Able and his companion, while on riding, stopped to visit the fairs of Mrs. Canham, who was so disorderly that Mrs. Canham had ejected him from the house by his friend, Able was fairly wild from the effects of his frequent potations, and when forced to leave the house his anger knew no bounds. He burst through a door, and gained entrance to the house, however, and made his way to the room, where he found his hostess and a large number of persons. Able took a revolver and fired at Mrs. Canham, who could move. The bullet sped to its mark, and crashed through the woman's brain, and she fell to the floor a corpse. Able did at once, and has never been seen since. He is the son of a leading citizen of Gadsden, and the country is wild with excitement over the crime.

A VESSEL ON FIRE.

AND SUNK IN ORDER TO SAVE OTHER PROPERTY.

DETROIT, October 24.—This morning a fire broke out in the steam barge William Radolph, while crossing Lake St. Clair. Captain John D. Howell, of the New Haven, and his crew of eight, were on board. They had been enroute to Cleveland to sink his vessel, and the Cleveland crushed in the Radolph's stern, causing the vessel to sink, and driving the flames to bow. Later in the day a tug went up from this city and succeeded in extinguishing the flames. Both the vessel and cargo are a total loss. The vessel was valued at $20,000. She was loaded with timber, valued at several thousand dollars.

CANADA GAINS A CITIZEN.

A DISTINGUISHED INDIANAN FORCED TO SEEK NEW QUARTERS.

INDIANAPOLIS, October 24.—There are some indications here that Indiana has lost another citizen, and that the Canadian colony has gained a new recruit. Hicklin J. Landers occupied the position of confidential clerk of Barnes &amp; Co., packers, and a similar relation to Landers, Inc., the late firm of Landers, Barnes &amp; Co., and a licensing warehouse in addition he was senior member of the firm of Landers &amp; Weaver, brokers and commission men. For several days rumors have been current that Landers had practised the same as successfully worked by Neelde, of Chicago, and the sum he had secured was placed at a large figure, but the facts, so far as ascertained, were low, losses of about $10,000. Landers obtained money on bogus warehouse receipts, and the banks here are the losers.

THE WASHINGON FALL MEETING.

WASHINGTON, October 24.—The fall meeting of the National Jockey Club opens Tuesday, and unusual signs figure in the weather proves to be the most successful and most interesting, in every respect, ever given on the eastern racing season. The number of horses here to participate in the various contests is unprecedented, and in point of quality they are equal to the best. The contests are expected to be interesting and sensational.

RELIGION IN TUSCALOOSA.

BUYING OUT A CONVERTED BARKER'S WHISKY

FEATURES.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., October 24.—[Special.]—There has probably never been such a scene as was occasioned in Alabama before as was occasioned today by the revival now in progress here. An enormous church gathered such large crowds of persons that many were turned away. The meeting has been in progress two weeks and one hundred and fifty have joined the different churches. Services are held in all the churches at nine, afternoon, and night which are all attended.

The meetings are being conducted by Rev. Mr. Stringfellow at the Episcopal, Dillat, the Baptist, Alonso Monk at the Methodist, and St. Paul at the Presbyterian.

The most remarkable conversion has been J. W. Simpson, a leading barkeeper, whose son's influence caused him to join the church. He said to the church authorities: "I have no means of living."

changes in rheumatic limbs and discolored blood, but when the muscles are entirely withered no human power can restore them, and when a limb is once dead it is dead. But here is a limb that has lifeless. Christ says to him, "Stretch forth thy hand" and he stretches it forth.

In the eye of memory, how many diseases of that delicate organ have been cured? But Jesus says to one blind: "Be open," and the light of heaven was visible. The frost or an hour or two will freeze a man dead. But here is a man more or less puffy and swelling, who can walk and talk and eat, and when wine goes out can chafe a gall in his side.

What human voice could command a school of fish? Yet here is a voice that marshalls them as a general does his army, where they had let down the net and pulled it up with no fish in it, they let it down again, and the disciples lay hold and begin to pull, when by reason of the multitude of fish, the net broke.

Nature is His schoolroom, and the flowers—those were His tabernacles, when He slept in the bushes; the rain—it hung glittering on the thick foliage of the palms; the star of Bethlehem—it sang a Christmas carol over His birth; the rocks—they beat a dirge at His death.

Behold His victory over the grave! The hinges of the family vault become very rusty because they are never opened except to take another in. There is a knob on the outside of the door of the sepulchre, but none on the inside. Here comes the conqueror of death. Here comes the realm and says,

"Daughter of Jairus, sit up," and she sits up.

To Lazarus: "Come forth," and he came forth. To the widow's son He said: "Get up from thine bed," and he goes home with his mother. Then Jesus said to the people: "Behold the dead and here comes His friend, and I cried until the graves of the earth heard Him: "O death! I will be thy plague; O grave! I will be thy destruction!"

No man could go through all the obstacles I have described, you say, without having a nature adjured that would make him sick. And plain and simple, and nerves and bones were intertwined in the energies of omnipotence. In the syllables of that voice there was the emphasis of the eternal God. The foot that walked the decks of the ship in Tennessee shall stamp kingdoms of darkness into the dust. The foot of the King of Kings overthrew Augustus, owned all the earth; the foot of the King of Kings, and owned all the graves of the earth, said to death: "O death! I will be thy plague; O grave! I will be thy destruction!"

Mr. A. H. Cary leaves La Grange soon to go to his Florida groves. He has large co-operative groves there, which he wishes to make a success. His home is Lake Worth. He says this place is destined to be the most popular resort in the south.

On Thursday morning, Mr. John C. Call was almost entirely disabled, and could not walk. Mr. W. J. Brinson's place in Sweeny county, was standing thirty feet from the saw, which was running at high speed, when the saw caught a slab and buried it through the air, striking Mr. Call full in the face. Such was the velocity of the flight of the slab that it passed through his nose, and was striking the ground after hitting Mr. Call.

Again, and lastly, I learn from all that has been said this morning, that Christ was awfully in earnest. If it had not been a momentous mission, He would have turned back from the cross. He was not afraid of death, but of the severity with which He was to be received. He was standing on the cross, and the man had gone out to the cross to practice shooting at it, but, accidentally, he had a bullet in his hand, lying near the house door, with blood oozing from a bullet hole in his left breast, in the region of the heart. It is believed that the deceased came to his death by accidentally shooting himself while carelessly handling his pistol. Mr. Call was nineteen years of age and leaves a young wife.

Again, and lastly, I learn from all that has been said this morning, that Christ was awfully in earnest. If it had not been a momentous mission, He would have turned back from the cross. He was not afraid of death, but of the severity with which He was to be received. He was standing on the cross, and the man had gone out to the cross to practice shooting at it, but, accidentally, he had a bullet in his hand, lying near the house door, with blood oozing from a bullet hole in his left breast, in the region of the heart. It is believed that the deceased came to his death by accidentally shooting himself while carelessly handling his pistol. Mr. Call was nineteen years of age and leaves a young wife.

Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 25, 1886.

Indications for Atlanta
(taken at 1 o'clock, a.m.):
Fair weather; warmer in north and southern portion, nearly stationary temperature in southern portion. For Georgia: Fair weather, with easterly winds.
For Western Florida and Alabama: Fair weather, easterly winds, nearly stationary temperature.
Mississippi: Generally fair weather, southerly winds, nearly stationary temperature.
Tennessee and Kentucky: Fair weather, southeasterly winds; slightly warmer.A Suggestion to a Country Editor.
The Springfield Republican, referring to the projected Atlanta, Mississippi and Atlantic railroad, has this to say:
They have no opportunity for capitalists in Atlanta to even help subscribe the money for new enterprises, and probably the dollar will be passed round and the thing will be done. The effect upon the real estate and railroad stock market at New York, when this great freight conspiracy is consummated, can be better imagined than described.

Our esteemed contemporary, which seems to have some sort of vague understanding of the unity that prevails in Atlanta whenever there is a project on foot to add to the prosperity of the city, need not be informed that the proposed railroad will be built. Atlanta has said it, and that is enough. But if it is not enough, then we take pleasure in announcing that the various towns along the line have also said it, and every dollar of the money necessary to build and equip the road will be promptly forthcoming at the proper time.

Just how these things are done in Massachusetts we do not know, but in Atlanta they are done by a system of neighborly cooperation that has never been known to fail in any undertaking.

But we did not copy the extract from the Springfield Republican for the purpose of restating these facts, but for the purpose of calling attention to the attempt of our esteemed contemporary to ape the tone of the metropolitan press. It is the first time we have seen such an attempt in this particular quarter, and to the credit of the Republican, it is not a very successful attempt. It doesn't handle the metropolitan sneer with the skill of an expert. Springfield is as country as Atlanta, and it behoves a Springfield editor to see to it that his remarks are made fit for its surroundings.

Our esteemed contemporary has a flavor and an individuality. Let it hereafter leave the vulgar sneer to the metropolitan dailies.

The Cotton Statement.

The Financial Chronicle's cotton statement for the week ending October 22d shows that the total receipts have reached 266,818 bales, against 230,288 bales last week, 197,166 bales the previous week and 156,463 bales three weeks since; making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1886, 1,083,318 bales, against 1,120,430 bales for the same period of 1885, and showing a decrease since September 1st, 1886, of 35,112 bales.

The exports for the week reached a total of 147,722 bales, of which 87,855 were to Great Britain, 11,354, to France and 48,510 to the rest of the continent. Below are the exports for the week and since September 1st, 1886.

The figures indicate a decrease in the cotton in sight of 10,532 bales as compared with the same date of 1885, a decrease of 186,305 bales as compared with the corresponding date of 1884 and a decrease of 43,055 bales as compared with 1883.

The totals show that the old interior stocks have increased during the week 38,961 bales and are to 26,514 bales more than at the same period last year. The receipts at the same towns have been 9,621 bales more than the same week last year, and since September 1st the receipts at all the towns are 12,766 more than for the same time in 1885.

The total receipts from the plantations since September 1st, 1886, have been 222,779 bales; in 1885 were 1,205,702 bales; in 1884 were 1,270,656 bales.

Although the receipts at the outports the past week were 38,818 bales, the actual movement from plantations was 308,487 bales, the balance going to increase the stocks at the interior towns. Last year the receipts from the plantations for the same week were 305,754 bales, and for 1884 they were 321,968 bales.

The weather has in general been very satisfactory for crop gathering at the south during the week. Picking has therefore made excellent progress, and the movement of cotton to market continues free.

Labor's Golden Age.

We live in an era of good times.

This is not the best age of the world, history contains no record of a better one.

Democrats and sentimentalists talk about the better days of the republic.

Let us examine those better days a moment. Professor Thompson in an address before the students of Harvard has given us many hints of interest. In 1793 laborers in the middle states commanded five dollars a month in the winter, and six dollars in the summer, with board and lodging. Soldiers in the United States army received three dollars a month. A proposition to raise it to four dollars caused a Vermont member of congress to say that in his state men were hired for four dollars a month.

In the deep woods the industrious hog is nailing the mast.

It is hard to snit some folks. John B. Clark of Manchester, N. H., wanted to be nominated for congress. Failing to secure the nomination he hung himself. On the other hand Louis B. Littlefield, of Wayne county, Michigan, wanted to be nominated for congress, and succeeded in his aspiration. His success brought him nothing but distress. He learned that his opponents would publish the fact that twenty years ago he was a convict in a New York penitentiary. He therefore visited the offices of the afternoon papers, and beginning with the starting statement, "I am a convict," went on to relate that, buying a house in good faith from Thomas Manning, in New York state twenty-one years ago, he was arrested in Utica on the charge of having stolen the animal. The case dragged along in the courts for twenty-five cents a month and board. A woman and girl together could earn only twelve cents a day at the spinning wheel. They were glad to pick wool off the bushes and briars where the sheep had left it, and knit it into mittens to make about a dollar a year extra money.

In the cities was heard the cry of overproduction. Men were fortunate in finding work at from sixty to seventy-five cents a day, and the highest wages paid to women was twenty-five cents. The poor died of cold and starvation, and little attention was paid to their wants.

As late as 1839 this condition of affairs was not materially improved. McMaster in his history, gives these facts more in detail, and his picture of life during the first forty years of our republic is gloomy in the extreme. After reading these cold facts the average workman of the present day will not feel disposed to listen to labor agitators, socialists and demagogues. Instead of swelling the chorus of complaint, he will feel like breaking out in a song of thanksgiving. This is the age of the worker, and it is the best and brightest that ever blessed our toiling millions.

An Editorial Congressman.

Amos J. Cummings, who was managing editor of the New York Sun, when that sheet was as brilliant and satisfactory in its news columns as it always has been in its editorial department, has been nominated for congress by the United Tammany and County Democracy of New York city. His election is therefore assured, and, while it is a pity that so useful a journalist should find it agreeable to mix with the small fry politicians who make Washington their headquarters, we feel that his political ambition, if he has any, will be thoroughly satisfied with one term in congress. Indeed, we are of the opinion that Mr. Cummings, if he accepts the nomination, will do so for newspaper purposes—that is to say, he will take advantage of the opportunity merely to add to his knowledge of human nature.

Mr. Cummings once made Georgia his home. He lived, moved and had his being when a boy, in the town of Warrenton, and there is to be found in his writings and in his personality a distinct Georgian twang. Perhaps it is for this reason that there are warm places in our various and several bosoms for this young man who, with scarcely any effort in metropolitan journalism. Like Horace Greeley's, it is an individuality that cannot be obscured by the anonymity in which the newspaper envelop themselves.

A Pointed Question.

Mr. Hewitt has asked Henry George a very troublesome question. He calls upon the apostle of socialism to explain what he means when he says that his campaign is "a continuation of the French revolution."

Citizen George will find it difficult to give a satisfactory explanation. The conditions which brought on the French revolution do not exist here. If the language quoted means anything, it means that Mr. George proposes to make anarchy a factor in our politics. This must be the answer to Mr. Hewitt's question, if any answer is given.

Citizen George's programme is too lurid, too full of horrors. Doubtless there are men who will indorse it, but the rules of the lunatic asylum, in which they are sojourning, will prevent them from taking an active part in the campaign.

TEXAS THINKS HER COAST IS SINKING.

If true, calls for reform and an appropriation.

A NEW THEATER IS TO BE BUILT IN LOUISVILLE.

Evidently the people there want some more entertaining amusement than the antics of a newspaper clown.

A SENSATIONAL shooting affair has just taken place in Philadelphia. George W. Symonds shot and fatally wounded James H. Bunn. Symonds claims to have spent much of his life in the south and on the western frontier. He is a story writer. Bunn was a paper hanger. About three weeks ago a Mrs. Elizabeth Sunderland, a widow, went to the house of Symonds to live. She knew Mrs. Symonds, and the understanding was that she was to do the family sewing for her board. A day or two after Mrs. Sunderland's arrival Bunn called to see her and repeated his visits at intervals of two or three days. He called on Thursday night about nine o'clock, and Mrs. Sunderland and Mrs. Symonds entertained him in the parlor. Mrs. Symonds' husband, who had taken a long walk during the day, had gone to bed. Bunn brought a bottle of whisky with him, and after it had been drunk he went out and got more. When midnight arrived Bunn, Mrs. Sunderland and Mrs. Symonds were all somewhat under the influence of liquor. At half past one o'clock Symonds' little eight-year-old daughter, who was in bed with her father, heard a noise down stairs, and, waking her father, said, "Papa, where is mamma? She has come home." The boy, who was a shoemaker, having learned the trade from her husband and continued to work at it after his death, order to support and educate her three children. Johnson became acquainted with the family and noticed one of the girls' thoughts possessive, but a limited education was very capable of instructing her husband, which she did, teaching him to read, write and cipher. Thus giving her lessons, her husband would sit cross-legged and work at his trade.

PERSONS AND THINGS.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE'S only son, Henry H. Howe, has entered the field of literature. His first effort was an essay upon "Steel in Warfare," read last week before the Society of Arts.

Mr. H. C. Butler of South Carolina, arrived in Washington with his family on Thursday, returning from Europe. They tarried a few hours at the capitol, and then proceeded to their home in Michigan.

LONGDALE and his Violin seem to have passed reluctantly from public gaze.

The music struck the player and the peer was cruel standing opposite his store one day, with a look of disengagement on his face, he went to him and asked him to come over to the shop and he would help him. Johnson quickly accepted the offer.

Once upon a time when Johnson worked in a shop in New York he was a boy of 15.

He was a very little room in their heads for a boy.

Over the Garden Wall.

The Savannah Times of October 21st thus describes the play:

"Mr. George Knight, the popular comedian with his wife, a charming actress, and a good company, presented the amusing piece entitled, 'Over the Garden Wall,' to a good audience. The piece is a composition of oddities, amusing situations, sprightly dialogues, good singing and dancing, and a variety of character sketches. Biting wit is added to the last degree, to create a profound impression. The scene of his den in Crooky street is well contrived, and the action is well managed. The play there, his last struggle with Rita is so vividly real that it is deserving of the loud applause he received. Mr. Knight is a good actor, and Miss Nipper is equally as good. Mr. Max Schmid, as a policeman, and Tillie Barnum, as a servant, are good. Mr. Edwin Morris, as September, Sam, and Florence Vinton, as Mrs. Talbot, do their work well."

The scenery is excellent. That of the first act, including a view of New York harbor, showing the Brooklyn Bridge on its pedestal, is prophetic and interesting.
